

General Information

The following pages provide information concerning costs, freshman admissions requirements, Internet services, academic programs, and student financial aid for Alabama postsecondary institutions. Estimated costs are based on each school's Title IV budget for participation in federal financial aid programs. The budgets show total cost of education for dependent and independent students who are enrolled full-time.

Information in this chapter is subject to change prior to the beginning of the 2003–2004 school year. For the most up-to-date information, you should contact the school you plan to attend.

As the Page Turns...

This chapter is divided into four sections.

A state map (turn the page) shows you where Alabama's colleges, universities, and trade schools are located.

Starting on page 50, admissions, estimated cost, and financial aid information is presented for each school.

A listing of academic majors using titles provided by Alabama institutions, along with the degrees offered for each major, appears on pages 117–135. This information is provided alphabetically by school name.

On pages 136–150 you'll find a quick-reference list of majors that shows whether a particular area of study is offered at a particular school. These may not be the exact titles used by Alabama schools...but they're close. The listing is alphabetical by name of the major.

All schools included in Getting In: Your Guide to Higher Education in Alabama must be participating in a Title IV program or be a public institution. KHEAA has not independently verified information concerning the programs offered by institutions, accreditation and licensure, or eligibility of the institutions to participate in federal Title IV programs of student financial aid. KHEAA, therefore, makes no representation, express or implied, about the accuracy of that information but relies on information submitted by each institution. Some Alabama schools that provide financial aid may not meet KHEAA's guidelines for inclusion in Getting In or may not have responded to KHEAA's request for information about their school. Students attending these institutions should check with the school's financial aid office for information about their financial aid programs.
